Account Checkup - Beneficiaries

Simply having a will is not enough. Your retirement accounts will pass to the beneficiaries named on each account, or possibly according to the default provisions of your retirement plan, regardless of the instructions in your will. As time goes by and your life circumstances change, the beneficiaries you initially chose may no longer reflect your current wishes.

Not updating your beneficiary designations can lead to your retirement or banking assets being distributed in a way that does not align with your current intentions.
